There is a beautiful doublet 16mm x 11mm for only $34 and a lovely pair of doublets, the largest being 19mm x 14mm, one could be a pendant and the other a ring for only $60. The same could be said for matching doublets at only $44 the largest is 14mm x 7mm, that would make a fantastic ring, the other could be a small pendant, they are both backed onto opal, they are very old stones that have been put aside by a miner. The back of the largest 14mm x 7mm is lovely blue green opal.

There are six Boulder opals, the largest being 30mm x 14mm 38.7cts for only $150, now that's a ridiculous price, you can't buy Boulder opal and cut for that price. All of this Offer apart from the Pipe/Shell has come from a guy that has been holding stock for years, he really didn't have any idea of prices, to get Boulder solids as bright as these purple only $25 each is really ridiculous. It just about costs you that to get them cut.

The knapped arrowhead for only $38 is terrific value. For those of you who don't knap you can get three beautiful Boulder cut stones for only $120 16.59cts, is also tremendous value.

The polished shell pieces can be set as pendants, whilst they are thin I've seen an opal dealer wear something considerably better than these but no thicker, it was never damaged.

I love the $125 solid opal, it appears to be black down one side because it has Boulder ironstone behind it. It's a magnificent gem piece, it would make great ring, it looks like a mountain with the sun going down behind it.

The shell/pipe opal for $875 is a beauty. You couldn't buy such brilliant opal for less than $12,000/oz. When this is cut, polished and finished it can be worn either as a pendant or a ring. If my life depended on it I think I'd say it was part of a shell. The cutter certainly designed it so that it looked like an opalised squid (belemnite also known as a pipe).

There are some lovely Boulder pieces in this Offer, the five pieces weigh 19.5oz, only $200 for the lot. Two of those stones are parts of Yowah Nuts, there is nowhere else in the world that you are going to buy Boulder opal like these, some of them showing very close to gem opal for only $10.25/oz. There has been quite a lot of work to get these stones as they are. The other two Boulder stones that show definite gem opal are wonderful value for only $220. Both can be used as specimens or cut into regular Boulder opals.

This is a wonderful Offer, you can get some very beautiful opals for very little money. Take a look at the red stars and they will direct you to the brightest stones at the best prices.
