

Hi Folk

Today we have some very unusual large opal Matrix beads to offer you. They are inexpensive and very beautiful as you can see from the pictures. Large beads like these are often used as single pendants, see below a picture of my daughter Kirsty wearing a black opal bead from the 17 Mile, they are expensive at $1,000 or more each, whereas I don't think there is anything in this Offer that we are selling for more than $120.

There is a magnificent 12mm round here, beautiful bright greens on one side and reds on the other. If that were a black opal you'd be talking a minimum of $1,500-2,000 but because this is an Andamooka Matrix opal which has been treated it is only $120.

There is one pair of 12mm rounds, you could actually use those as earrings, they are not too heavy, only $190 for the pair. Where are you going to find a pair of earrings for that low price?

You can look at the 91.9ct and 71ct packets, there is more than one stone in each packet, we are prepared to sell them individually. Most beads work out at less than $100 each. There are not a lot of beads here so I suggest that you jump in quickly.

You could make an interesting pendant with a 12mm round sitting on top of a 13mm round, sitting on top of a 14mm round bead, having 2 or 3 beads rather than just the 1, you could afford to do it because as I said these are very inexpensive.

All the best. Thanks for taking the time to read about our Andamooka Matrix opal beads.
