Subject: Opal Spheres/Marbles OFFER 11 Oct 2011

We have some spheres that are drilled so they can be use for focal beads or if they are in pairs, earrings. Most of what you see below are actually drilled.

The ones with streaky lines of opal through them are from Andamooka and we have cut the spheres from Painted Ladies, normally with a Painted Lady the opal just runs flat along the face but we were lucky to secure some pieces where the opal ran higgledy piggledy through the stone so what you have before you now is very unique.

Now the five larger stones are spheres that have not been drilled. We do have marble collectors that buy pieces like this, the 4cm round pair of Opal Ladies IMG_0630 for only $150 are really magnificent. These pieces make beautiful specimens and are a collector's item. Unless someone has purchased from us and lives nearby no-one will have one of these spheres within a 500 mile radius.

IMG_0635 the 5cm Opal Lady is just gorgeous it looks a bit like the world with the Tropic of Cancer running right around the stone, the Equator isn't quite as straight but it is there.

IMG_9311 the pair 27mm round spheres for only $180 is drilled and is magnificent.

I'll let the rest of them speak for themselves but I would ask that you take a special look at the Boulder Matrix spheres, blow them up and you'll see the beautiful colours emanating from the stones.

I include a picture of a Painted Lady IMG_3915. This is a beautiful piece of brilliant gem crystal greens and another bar of reds. This is what many of the spheres were made from.

Now just in case the spheres don't interest you I have a pair of Super Gem 18mm x 13mm Triplets IMG_1234, they are only $210. These make great rings, earrings or cufflinks. I made myself a pair of cufflinks in 1972 that were as good as these and I still wear them today. For only $210 these are an absolute bargain.

Murray
