Subject: Shell Pendant OFFER 11 Aug 2011

Today we are going to offer you some inexpensive opalised sea shells, some have been drilled so that you can put a wire choker or cord straight through the hole and wear it as a pendant without having any costs of setting. These are very inexpensive for something that is said to be 100 million years old.

We also have some other beautiful shells that aren't drilled that can be used as pendants or collector's items as specimens. There is an absolutely gorgeous large shell there for only $99 weighing 96.4cts.

There are other stones with beautiful colours, none better really than the double sided pinfire reds and greens 57.4cts for only $145. You wouldn't buy a stone like this on the field in the rough for that money and then you would have to pay to have it cut, it's a beautiful thing. You could actually cut matching earrings and a ring out of this stone but it is a pity to ruin it because it is really something special as a shell.

When I said there is nothing better, look at the $158 one that's a nice little fat shell, double sided, could be split down the middle and have beautiful earrings made from it.

For those of you who are creative, take a good look at the $62 skinny shell. It is curved and just fits straight over a finger. It would make a nice ring stone or pendant. It has a beautiful broad brilliant green flash with a little blues in it, it weighs 10cts, you are looking at $6/ct, that's ridiculous. It's worth $20/ct of anyone's money.

Good luck.

First in best dressed again.

Murray
